LIVE AND LOCAL

In May 2016 Music SA undertook a census of live music of licensed premises in greater Adelaide, to take a snapshot of the state of play. Compiled by Music SA staff, the data was gathered from venue websites and social media pages, and various gig guides online and in printed form. Further information was sourced through word of mouth, working the phones, as well as Music SA and industry contacts. The Live Music Office provided assistance for the project.

The same exercise was undertaken in May 2015 so that Music SA is now able to present comparative figures. In both years the research has been a best effort exercise to capture as many gigs as possible, but may not be conclusive as some venues may have been unintentionally overlooked. However, what this gives us is a very good indication of the state of play, and is the least of what happened during the month of May. May was selected so that figures were not skewed by heightened cultural activity during February and March, nor the spring and Christmas seasons, which tend to be busier times for musicians.

Music SA were able to undertake a more thorough investigation this year and included 20 suburbs not included last year that accounted for 27 venues and 104 gigs. Of these the biggest were:

- Mt Barker (6 venues and 25 gigs)
- Warradale (2 venues and 18 gigs)
- Tea Tree Gully (2 venues and 16 gigs)
- Aldinga (1 venue 8 gigs)

There were 35 more gigs in comparison to the same suburbs last year even though there was one less Saturday in May 2016 compared to May 2015.

- 42% of last year's suburbs increased live music gigs
- 7% of last year's suburbs maintained the same number of live music gigs
- 52% of last year's suburbs decreased live music gigs

Highlights:

2015	2016
• 962 gigs were presented • 157 venues hosted live music • Hotels provided 769 gigs across 108 venues – (79.9% of gigs and 68.7% of venues) • There were 17 gigs across 3 Entertainment Venues, 39 gigs in 8 Clubs, and 17 gigs in 6 Restaurants • Only 1 small venue licence had live music, hosting 3 gigs across the month. (0.3% of gigs and 0.5% of venues). This category of liquor licence was introduced in 2012 to support the development of the live music sector in South Australia • Gigs were 30% original and 70% covers • Adelaide City provided the most live music • 11 of the Special Circumstances Licences were Hotels.	• 1101 gigs were presented • 208 venues hosted live music • Hotels provided 899 gigs across 153 venues – (81.6% of gigs and 73.5% of venues) • There were 23 gigs across 6 Entertainment Venues, 47 gigs in 13 Clubs, and 36 gigs in 6 Restaurants • Only 2 small venue licences had live music, hosting 4 gigs across the month. This category of liquor licence was introduced in 2012 to support the development of the live music sector in South Australia • Gigs were 33% original and 67% covers • The suburb of Adelaide provided the most live music • 14 of the Special Circumstances Licences were Hotels.

Ian Horne, General Manager of the Australian Hotels Association (SA Branch) was delighted with the results of the latest survey, "With 82% of all live music gigs played in a hotel, South Australian hotels continue to be loud and proud supporters of live music and this of course is good for the music industry, the hotel industry, jobs and the State"

- Short term, it captures what sort of music is presented in licensed premises in greater Adelaide and who presents it.
- Mid term, the census shows a 14.4% increase in gigs and a 32.4% increase in venues.
- Longer term, the project provides a baseline of the live music scene from which to evaluate the effectiveness of strategic policy delivery such as regulatory reform as well as to assist in determining funding priorities. Case in point is the presentation of live music in the small venue licence category. Whilst there are now over 60 small venue licences, this census has shown that only 2 of these stage live music. It has been identified that while the licence category was created to encourage live music, entertainment has been restricted through the planning approval process. The Live Music Office is advocating for the Development Regulations to be amended to exclude 'low risk' live music and performance from being considered development.

The Grace Emily Hotel George Swallow

Live music is what we do, without it we wouldn't have our business or our community. Our passion for live original music and creating a community is what drives us. Having a city with a thriving live music scene adds not only to our city's image but has great economic benefits. When people come out to The Grace to see a show they don't just head to the gig, they will most likely come into the city and visit many venues, restaurants and businesses. Live music draws people from all over into the city.

The Tonkin Family The Gov

At The Gov, live music is at the heart of creating a community who feel connected to the hotel. It's the thing that draws people back time and again. Locals come to our Front Bar music events that not only have live bands on show at The Gumbo Room and on Saturday nights, but also encourage everyone to get involved through our open mic night, ukulele society and old-timer fiddlers group. These regular events are an important part of creating a vibrant place for our local community. The Venue draws from the wider Adelaide area and into the regions of the state by presenting an opportunity for audiences to see local and touring acts in a great environment. Through positive relationships with bands and promoters we have created a place where they too enjoy the experience. Everyone wins because the positive experience encourages them all to return. Live music is what we love and it's what our community loves. It's that connection that makes The Gov a success.

The Hurley Group

The Hurley Hotel Group has always been a proud live music supporter and we still feature artists in all our bars (where possible) every week of the year. Live entertainment is integral to our business in not only attracting people to our venues but also getting them to stay longer. There is such an amazing and diverse talent range in Adelaide at the moment that we are loving.

Lisa Bishop General Manager Music SA

Music SA is delighted with the results of second annual Live Music Census. Live music is a difficult business however the increase in local work for musicians is encouraging. With further planned improvements to live music regulation we foresee a sustainability that will demonstrate the importance of live music as an industry that drives South Australia's economic transformation. Additionally, the spirit of cooperation amongst Music SA, government at all levels, the Australian Hotels Association, musicians, clubs and venues is ripe. There's never been a better time for audiences to enjoy live music and for the industry to get behind significant live music gig initiatives such as Umbrella Winter City Sounds, the ACC's Live Music Action Plan, the Adelaide Festival Centre's Guitars in Bars, and the SA Tourism Commission's Live Music Events Fund. We are truly a UNESCO City of Music and we are open for business!
